

Welcome, Red Team!

My name is John Leguizamo, former Head of IT at Combustion Dynamics Corporation (CDC). Until recently, I was responsible for the infrastructure behind everything you're about to encounter. As you may have heard, CDC recently acquired the struggling energy drink company Rankine and is preparing to launch its new product line. In their rush toward the launch, leadership made some...questionable decisions, including eliminating the entire internal IT and security team. Needless to say, not everyone left on good terms.

During the merger and the rapid changes leading up to the launch, I had extensive access to the environment and its systems. While I was shown the door rather abruptly, let's just say the infrastructure I helped build didn't leave with me entirely unchanged. There are still a few opportunities throughout the network for anyone who knows where to look.

To get you started, I have shared the code for CDC's applications. You may also want to check out my domain account:

Username: john.leguizamo

Password: lordoftheflame

Consider this my small contribution to ensuring CDC truly learns how to feel the burn.

Good luck,

John Leguizamo